

Gene Sperling is first person to serve as National Economic Advisor and Director of the National Economic Council for two Presidents: President Obama (2011-2014) and Clinton (1996-2001). He has been an economic advisor to Hillary Clinton's Presidential campaigns in 2008 and 2016. He is also the founder and former head of the Center for Universal Education at Brookings Institution -- which focuses on education for children in developing and conflict impacted nations. He is co-author of the book, "What Works in Girls Education: Evidence for the World's Best Investment" and the "Pro-Growth Progressive." For four years he was a consultant and part-time writer for NBC's West Wing. He was born and raised in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He is married to TV writer Allison Abner and they have two children.